Planning news: Peter van Duijvenvoorde writes:

WHITTON SOLAR FARM

You have probably seen in the local papers that the revised application for a solar farm in Whitton was unanimously turned down by the Planning Committee of Shropshire Council.

Members of the committee of "Save South Shropshire Countryside" who have worked so hard to fight against both this, and the previous application, would like to give enormous thanks to the many people in the area who took the time to register their objections. There is no doubt that these objections were taken into account and made a real difference, and it shows how many of us cherish and wish to protect this glorious countryside.

Of course the battle may not yet be over, as there may well be an appeal; but, as yet, we do not know when, or if, this will be.

So, thank you again; and next time you walk around the area you can perhaps imagine how this fine agricultural land would look if it was turned into a vast, ugly, industrial site.
